

NEW BUILDING
FOR INMATESCounty Commissioners Talk of New County Farm Buildings.

At the regular meeting of the Rockingham County commissioners, which was held at Brentwood Wednesday at the county farm buildings preliminary plans were taken for the new buildings for the inmates. Nothing definite however was transacted.

The new building is the outgrowth of the $5000 which was allowed by the Rockingham County delegation at the last legislature for improvements and new buildings if necessary. The committee for the work is composed of Dana W. Baker of Exeter, Daniel Evans of East Kingston, George P. Marcy and Joseph Schurman of Portsmouth and Charles B. Wheeler of Atkinson.

Dr. A. W. Mitchell of Epping, the county physician was present, and planned for the hospital improvements. Architectural plans have been drawn up, and they are subject to change, and there was nothing definite accomplished at the meeting.

KNIGHTS HAVE GOOD
CROWD AT FAIR

The Knights of Columbus despite the stormy weather had a large crowd and on their second night of their fair.

There was the usual demand for goods and there was some lively work by the young people.

A short musical program was given and dancing was a feature from ten to eleven o'clock.

AGREEMENT
SAID TO EXISTOne Has Been Reached in Relation
Russian-American Treaty
About to Expire

Washington, Nov. 14.—An agreement between the United States and Russia, to take the place of the commercial treaty of 1832, the abrogation of which becomes effective January next, virtually has been reached, according to information from high official authority. Nothing as to the exact nature of the agreement is announced. It was declared probable however, that it would be worked out satisfactorily to both countries before the date when the old treaty would expire.

This advanced stage in the negotiations has been reached only after a number of conversations between Secretary of State Knox and the Russian Ambassador Bakmeteff, beginning last summer and continued at frequent intervals, the last occurring today.

Only in a general way can it be said that an understanding exists that a complete rupture of commercial relations shall not take place for the details of the arrangement remain to be worked out. Even with the heat of intentions on the part of the negotiators, owing to the difficulty of rapid communication between Washington and St. Petersburg, save by the unsatisfactory cable method it is going to consume little less than seven weeks that intervene between the present date and December 31 when the old treaty expires to accomplish this mutually desired result.

Owing to the extreme delicacy of the subject and the possibility of the complete failure of the proposed agreement in even that there should be public discussion and criticism neither party to the negotiations is willing to throw any light upon the details of the agreement.

From such sidelight, as is possible however, it appears that Russia has not consented to modify its practice of refusing passports to American or other non Russian Jews. The czar's government has always held that such Jews, even though they are American citizens are not entitled to travel or reside in Russia, because the existing treaty provides that any American seeking to enter Russia shall submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing.

The state department has never admitted the soundness of this contention and when congress by resolution ordered the denunciation of the treaty, the actual though not the formal ground being this alleged discrimination against American citizens—the departments position necessarily becomes unalterable. It is said that in all probability Russia will meet the issue by refraining from applying her maximum and practically exclusive tariff duties to imports from America.

SIGHT OF EYE
IS DESTROYEDSuit of $10,000 Instituted
Against Produce
Dealer.

Claiming that the sight of one eye was completely destroyed and that the sight of the other is seriously affected as the result of boyishness carelessness, George A. Clough, for his son, Marion A. Clough, has brought suit for $10,000 against Frank E. Lougee, a wholesale produce dealer on State street. The papers are returnable at the April term of superior court.

Lougee's store is situated at the corner of State and Penhallow streets. Marion A. Clough, 18 years old, was employed by Lougee. The plaintiff alleges that he was directed by the defendant to clear away certain parts of the second floor of the building which included several pieces of moulding. He alleges that Lougee's son who is about 14 years of age, entered that floor and engaged in throwing the material out of the window.

Clough alleges that the Lougee boy picked up a long piece of moulding and holding it as a javelin hurled it at the open window. The moulding struck Clough upon the left eye, it is alleged, and completely destroyed the sight. It is alleged in the papers served today that Dr. Arthur J. Lance asserts that the sight of the right eye is temporarily and probably permanently disabled. Kelley & Hatch are counsel for Clough.

DOVER DOCTOR SUED.
Claimed That He Carelessly
mobile.

Page, Bartlett and Mitchell as counsel for Harry Pace, and for Mrs. Mary E. Martin, sued Dr. Everett L. Chatman of Dover in two actions totalling $200 and involving an automobile smashup Saturday night on Maplewood avenue near the home of Henry P. Payne. Pace was driving a delivery wagon for Mrs. Martin. He alleges that he was run down by Dr. Chatman's automobile, and he was thrown from the wagon and badly injured upon the body and legs and that the careless operation of the machine by Dr. Chatman was responsible for the accident. Pace's suit is for $5000. That of Mrs. Martin is for $200.

SUES B. & M.
For the Death of Henry Caverhill at Exeter.

Two tort cases against the Boston & Maine railroad have been entered into the October docket of the superior court. The first is that of Henry Caverhill for $10,000. Caverhill was employed on the Boston & Maine engine in Exeter. In avoiding one train he stepped into the path of another and was killed. The other is of Lena Perreault 6 years old. The girl was returning from school and was held up by a railroad crossing in Exeter by the lowered gates. A freight train passed and the girl stepped onto the tracks in front of a passenger train, running in the opposite direction.

GIRL'S BODY
IN BATH TUBHer Employer is Thought to Know Something About it and is Detained by the Police

Boston, Nov. 15.—Baffled by the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Marjorie G. Powers, whose nude body was found lying face down in a partly filled bath tub of a Boston hotel yesterday, the police and medical authorities are at a standstill awaiting the result of an autopsy which will be made today.

The girl went to the hotel at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with a man who signed on the register the names of "Mr. and Mrs. Davis." The man left at 4 o'clock. Thursday morning, when repeated calls from the office failed to be answered from the room assigned to the couple, the door was forced and the body found.

Soon after the police were notified they visited the Fenest market, where Miss Powers was employed as a stenographer. Her employer, Arthur T.

Cummings, was taken to police headquarters where he was detained on suspicion in connection with the case. Mr. Cummings is president and treasurer of a produce concern bearing his name and lives at Winthrop. He is 53 years old and married.

Medical Examiner George R. Magrath viewed the body, after which he declared that he was unable from a superficial examination to determine the cause of death. He said he found the body lying face down in the bath tub, and nude. There was eleven inches of water in the tub and the girl's head was completely immersed. In the water was evidence of mustard; said the medical examiner, while near the tub was a glass containing a liquid which smelled like gin. Dr. Magrath said he saw no poison in the room and believed the girl met death during the early hours of the morning.

AN IDEAL TRIP.
Local People Tour Mountains
In Auto.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Eldredge of Portsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Woods, and Mrs. George Trefethen of Rittely have arrived home from an extended automobile tour of the White Mountains. The left Sunday from Portsmouth via Dover, Rochester, Sanbornville, Ossipee, North Conway and Jackson to Mt. Washington, then Pinkham's Notch to Gorham; Berlin, Errol to Dixville, Notch which is but 175 miles. The roads were remarkably good to Mt. Washington. The taller mountains are covered with snow. There were a few bad places in Pinkham's Notch which had been washed out by recent rains. The roads in the 38 miles of woods are muddy and much cut up by rains and logging teams causing the auto to sink nearly to the hubs many times. It was all frozen up and covered with snow in the Dixville Notch, the only place where the roads were covered with snow. The trip on Monday through Colebrook, Groveton, Lancaster, Whitfield to Crawford's Notch North Conway, Fryeburg, Naples and Poland Springs was about 150 miles approximately ten hours on the road. It was even rougher than the Sunday trip but not so muddy as at Errol and Dixville when it was for miles at a time. There are state roads practically all of the way from Dixville to North Conway except a few patches which are being rebuilt. In Crawford's Notch at present there are few treacherous places caused by washouts and inundations which are dangerous. The roads from Conway to Fryburg are good dirt roads as only two or three places from to Poland Springs are very bad, they at present being dug up and under reconstruction. Tuesday the party visited the Springs and examined the water bottling plant. Leaving Poland Springs after breakfast they motored to Portland, then to Sanford and stopped at Portsmouth, just long enough for lunch, leaving Portsmouth at 4 p. m. They reached Boston at 7 p. m. look dinner there from whence they motored to New York and will return some time next week. The trip covered about 500 miles. Three days easy riding of about ten hours makes one of the ideal tours and in a Cadillac auto as was this party it is a pleasure never to be forgotten.

Mayor Badger Says City Solicitor Emery Was Misinformed.

City Solicitor Samuel W. Emery, Jr., this noon furnished the Herald with a copy of a letter he had received from Mayor Badger, in which the latter makes a general denial. The letter is as follows:

Portsmouth, N. H.

Dear Sir:—
I am in a receipt of a long letter from you dated November, 12, 1912, and have read it in its entirety. In reply will say that you have been misinformed, as no statements were made by me as mentioned in your letter.

While nothing more is necessary to be said in reply to your letter, I will further add in view of other matters which you mention, that the powerful and influential are not shown favor by me, and I have no desire to unjustly use you or anybody, but do have an earnest desire to help and encourage every worthy young man to the fullest extent of my power. I appreciate your kind consideration in withholding your communication until after my campaign for councilor was over, and I assure you of fair treatment and all sympathy to which you are entitled. Very truly yours,

UNEARTHED AN OLD GRAVESTONE

Stratham Man Makes Queer Find in a Stone Wall.

Walter C. Sargent, while at work in the woods near what is known as the old Stratham town farm in that town, unearthed an old gravestone bearing the inscription "Here layeth ye body of Jonathan Holt, Jr., born ye 24th day of January 1790, and died ye 2nd day of February, 1798. The stone was one of the old fashioned ones inscribed with the wings and filigree of the old time custom. Mr. Sargent saw a stone in the wall which appeared to be another than the others and by digging away the moss he saw that it was a gravestone in the wall. Being an ordinary field stone it had probably escaped notice.

It was some difficulty that he in company with selectman Leonard Smith made out the inscription. None of the old people in that section remembered a family by the name of Holt, and it is though plausible that the stone marks the grave of one of the paupers of the old town farm. The farm is now in charge of Arthur C. Skinner, and is situated on what is known as Stratham ridge.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Learn Chinese It Counselled to Hub-bites by British Skant—it's a Better Universal Lingua than Esperanto, Says Ramsay.

Boston, Nov. 15.—Still another diatribe is under attack. Abolition of rug beating in the Back Bay alleys was proposed at the first public meeting of the new Civic Federation of Boston. It was claimed by the secretary of the New England Women's club in a speech made on this occasion, that the rug beating nuisance of Back Bay alleys was a distinct menace to health, and that the alleys themselves in many times were in worse condition than those of the North and West Ends—and this not to mention the stray cats turned out of house and home, when the residences are closed for the summer, to assault the ears of a suffering populace with their midnight protest. Another interesting proposal was one for women police, made by Mrs. Eleanor H. Wood, president of the South End Women's club, who said: "It takes a woman to help girls who may do things that could be misconstrued and to help certain girls to find honest employment. We need street matrons such as they have in California, and much might be done by getting the authority for women privately paid as an intermediate step to getting them on the city staff." Numerous other suggestions for civic betterment furnished an amount of material for the new Civic Federation to ponder over for some time.

Hubbites were somewhat startled, at a recent convocation of students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, by Sir William Ramsay's argument for the adoption of Chinese as a universal language in place of Esperanto, which he thought could never be permanent. Sir William would limit the use of the new universal language to writing, to be translated by every reader into his own ideas and idioms. Some necessary improvements are admittedly necessary, such as building up and adapting the language characters to the fundamental ideas in communication, rather than attaching them together as occasion requires according to present Chinese custom. The majority of the audience were apparently too staggered by the proposition to form any immediate opinion on the subject, but considerable controversy is on among the linguists of the modern Athens.

The thousands of telephone employees in Boston and every New England city and village are rejoicing over the vast pension plan to be put into effect by the American Telephone and Telegraph company for the benefit of all the subsidiary companies. This plan will supplant a system adopted this year by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, and will go into effect January 1, 1913. The system is non-contributory, so far as the employees are concerned, and provides not only for old age pensions but for sickness, death and accident benefits. The size of the allied organization makes the undertaking an enormous one, entailing the maintenance of a ten million dollar fund. Thirteen thousand of the 175,000 employees of the company who will be benefited by the plan are employed in the various New England organizations.

At a time when suffragists throughout the nation are rejoicing over the addition of four more stars to the suffrage flag, those of Arizona, Kansas, Michigan and Oregon, Boston suffragists are preparing energetically for the annual national convention to be held this year at Philadelphia, Nov. 21-26. Among the speakers who will address the monster meeting to be held in Independence square, where six platforms will be erected for their purposes, are Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald and Miss Margaret Foley, two of the club's most popular suffrage speakers. The mornings and afternoons are to be devoted to business, but the evenings will be of especial interest to the public, as they will be addressed by people of national reputation, as the Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Miss Jane Addams, Harriette von Suttner of Austria and others. The Boston headquarters are busy with preparations for the departure of the representatives of Boston's suffrage league, and the promise is good for a lively time at Philadelphia. Such activity has been spurred on by the fact that ten states of the Union now place women on equal terms with men at the ballot box, with a resultant influence of 70 electorates. In humiliation many New Englanders, noting that of these ten states nine are west of the Mississippi and the remaining one is too close to it to be called an eastern state, are giving a new significance to the favorite quotation:

"Not by East nor windows only, When daylight comes, comes in the light."

In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly, But westward, look, the land is bright."

Frank Gotch Says Horror of Training Has Caused Him to Quit Wrestling

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Frank Gotch says he is sincere in his determination to retire from wrestling. The world's champion says that the horror of training for a mill causes him to give up the sport. "People say I got my money easy because it was just natural for me to wrestle well and I have all of the natural qualifications," said the champion recently. "I wish these people knew the truth. It's the hardest money I ever got. Now, I've had unpleasant things come up in my life and later on when I think of them, I try to think that it wouldn't be so hard to go through them again. That's the way with most of us. I guess. But with training it is vastly different. The tortures of training never will be erased from my memory." Gotch adds that Zbysoo can grab the title if he wants it. He is through. Frank says farming in the summer in Humboldt, Ind., and growing oranges and lemons in California during the winter will take up all of his time from now on.

A RARE DISTINCTION.

Col. D. C. Pavey to Address the College of William and Mary.

Two weeks ago Col. D. C. Pavey, of Boston and Somerville, formerly of this city, accepted an invitation from President Tyler of the College of William and Mary to deliver his noted lecture, "An Evening with Dickens" before the college and its friends at such a time as might be mutually agreed upon. Subsequently Col. Pavey received letters from Professor John C. Calhoun, chairman of college activities, in one of which he suggested Monday evening, Nov. 25, as the date of the lecturer's appearance, if agreeable to him, so that matter was clinched. Arrangements are also being made for an address to Confederate veterans before the Colonel's return.

The honor of addressing the second oldest educational institution in this country is the greater because Colonel Pavey is believed to be the first Union veteran ever invited to speak in that section, and the first Northern man since the Civil war to address the college.

The College of William and Mary, at Williamsburg, Va., was founded in 1693, but antedates Harvard in at least one respect: All of its faculty chairs were filled before Harvard's. George Washington was its chancellor from 1788 to 1799—the year of his death—and its list of graduates includes four presidents—Jefferson, Monroe, Harrison and Tyler; Chief Justice Marshall and General Scott. Williamsburg, the city where it is located, has the oldest city charter in Virginia and in early days was the capital of the State. The battle of Williamsburg will be remembered as the first hard fought battle of the Peninsular series during the Civil war.

Mrs. Pavey will accompany her husband to the "Old Dominion" and as it will be her first visit to the South the trip will be one of unalloyed enjoyment for her. While away Colonel and Mrs. Pavey will visit Richmond, Petersburg, City Point, Alexandria, Appomattox and Mount Vernon, and expect to be away a fortnight.

Put away your humors and go to work.

Portsmouth, N. H., Friday, November 15, 1912.

England Building More Naval Stations.

It will be recalled that the navy-general board, when it announced its plan for navy yard centralization, referred to the other powers following that scheme. The Herald has pointed out in a number of articles that the other powers are doing just the contrary. England is building four dock yards. Here is a cable dispatch that appeared on Thursday that shows that England is secretly building more naval stations.

"The progress which has been made this summer in the building operations of the great naval base of Rosyth, at Edinburgh, Scotland, is a matter for surprise, and it seems more than likely that the contractors, Messrs. Easton Gibb & Sons, will be entitled to the $200 per week bonus which the government has offered for the completion of the work within seven years.

"The full extent of the scheme and the minutiae connected with it have not been revealed by the admiralty, but it is very generally known that the work embraces the building of a battleship basin larger than any existing at any British port, of a submarine basin and of two large graving docks, the most spacious yet constructed.

"The seawall of the dockyard when completed will extend fully 1 1/2 miles. In its structure are comprised 140 giant monoliths 50 feet square. The method of sinking these monoliths to the bed rock, 100 feet below the bed of the Firth, consists in forming a steel shoe weighing 60 tons. The concrete is poured on to this and gradually the shoe sinks until solid ground is reached.

"The submarine basin to which the contractors first turned their attention is almost completed, whilst the dreadnought basin, lying to the west of the submarine dock, was pumped dry in July last. The most advanced section of the future naval base, is the aerial department at Carlingstone. Here three hangars have been erected and in these are housed two short hydro-aeroplanes, and one of the Farman type. Close to the aerial station will be erected the wireless telegraphy station."

Good Street Work.

The problem of maintaining our streets and highways in good condition grows more perplexing every year, as traffic grows heavier. There is one lesson that you always hear emphasized by expert road builders, which every official and worker who has anything to do with street maintenance needs to realize. That is that the least expensive way to maintain good streets is to remedy defects when they begin to show themselves.

Formerly the idea used to prevail among road builders that they could go over a street in the spring, and the resurfaced macadam or gravel, if put in good order, would last all through the season. But under modern motor traffic this is woefully insufficient. Once a little hollow gets started in a gravel or macadam road, it is surprising how soon it scoops out into a deep hole. The little hollow soon becomes a mud puddle and it grinds out deeper and deeper, and soon the motorist is given a free trip over the "shoot the chutes."

If the road builders will keep watch of all these little hollows as they start, filling them up and rounding them over, a street can be kept in order without very heavy expense. If the holes are allowed to remain, in a season or two a heavy bill for resurfacing is rendered necessary.

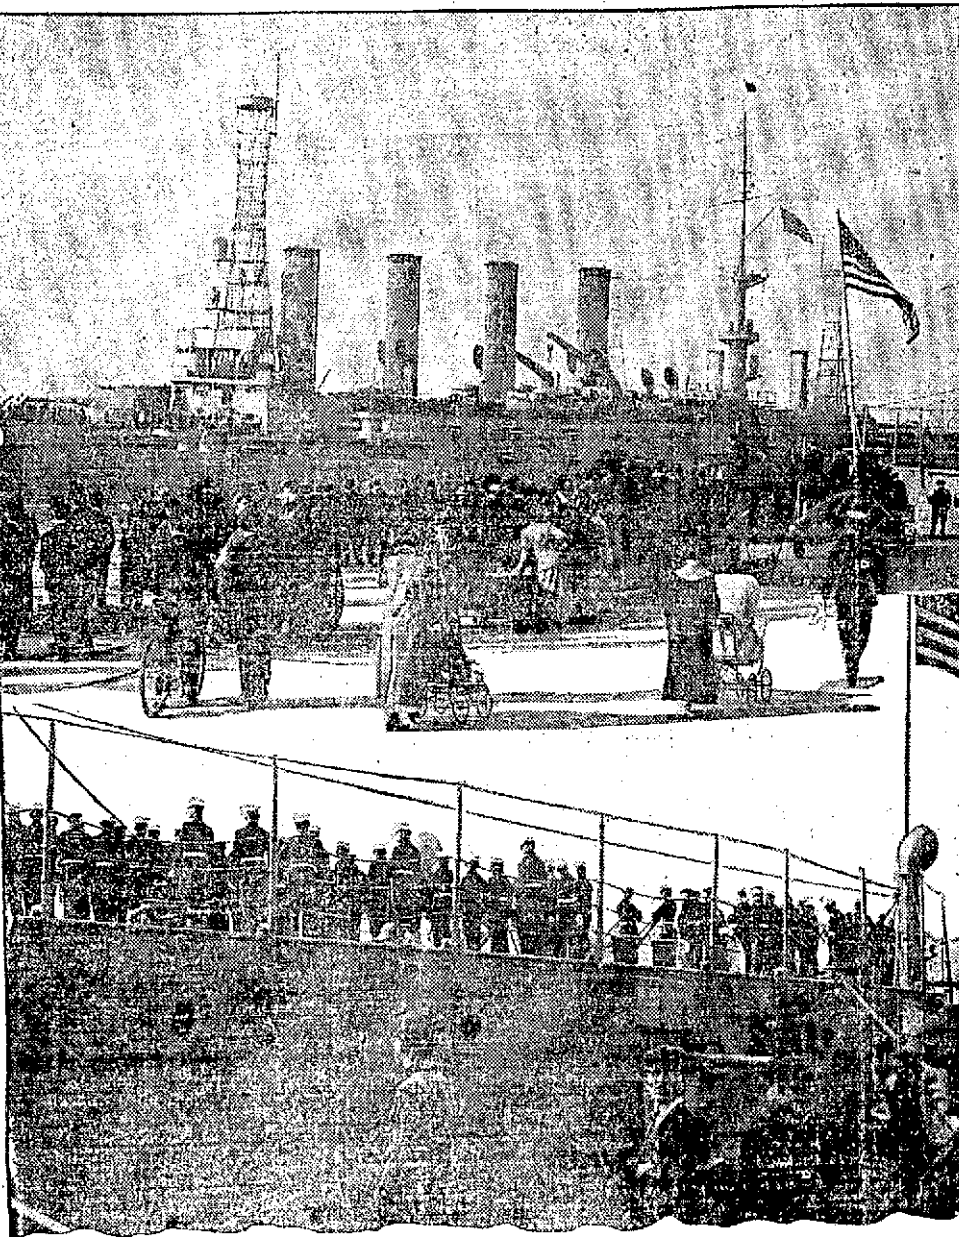

In these days of long distance travel, where motorists are slipping about the country a hundred or more miles a day, a host of strangers passes through our place daily. If our streets are kept up in good shape, our visitors carry away a favorable impression and spread the good fame of this town far and wide. If they are jounced and jarred by deep holes and ruts, they curse our road builders and all our works and ways, and declare that this is a slow, unprogressive town.—Manchester Mirror.

President Taft's Tremendous Gain In Popularity.

President Taft continues to smile while some people are gnashing their teeth and today in spite of the election result he is the most popular man in the country. He was given a tremendous ovation in New York and his dignified campaign has won him new friends who are beginning to get a peep behind the scenes. The people are commencing to understand the meaning of the whole fight against Taft. Keep your eye on President Taft.

The Philadelphia Ledger says as the time draws near for the inevitable settlement between the defeated Turks and the victorious Balkan allies anxiety in Europe deepens. There are not lacking pessimists who look upon the darkest side of the picture and who have little faith either in the self-denying resolution of the powers or in the ability of the statesmen of Europe to reconcile and compromise the conflicting interests and claims that stand in the way of the final adjustment. The six great powers are at present aligned into two supposedly opposing camps, that of the triple entente including Germany, Austria and Italy, and that of the entente embracing France, Russia and Great Britain. Of these Austria and Russia have the most immediate interest in the Balkan situation, and the commonly accepted view is, that the respective allies and friends will inevitably be drawn into any quarrel in which the principals may become involved.

U. S. S. Tennessee, Now on Way to Scene of Balkan War to Aid American Refugees.

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

The armored cruiser Tennessee of the United States navy sailed recently from Philadelphia bound for Constantinople under orders to make the eastern port with all haste. In addition to the stores taken for the officers and the crew, the Tennessee has on board 5,000 barrels of flour and 15,000 bushels of potatoes as an emergency diet for possible refugees. She also carries a wartime supply of ammunition. The cruiser carries 700 sailors and a company of marines and is expected to reach Constantinople Nov. 30. The upper picture shows the Tennessee as she was about to start. The other picture shows her machines being reviewed.

Ambassador Bryan?

Mr. Bryan for Whitelaw Reid's post? He should not consider the suggestion for a moment. Not that the place is outside his equipment. He could of course fill it well and easily. He has the temperament and the address essential to such service and would soon be a toast in all intellectual circles in the British islands. His fame which has gone everywhere is nowhere higher—a broad than among English speaking people.

But there is larger work for Mr. Bryan to do at home. The existing good relations between America and Great Britain are important, but thanks to the high grade men we have been sending to London, and Great Britain has been sending to Washington, they do not call for that extreme watchfulness they once did. The feeling of each country toward the other is now so cordial and sincere that it almost supports itself. Picked men are exchanged for diplomatic duties somewhat as a matter of compliment from the one country to the other. We have been fortunate in Mr. Reid's presence at the British court and Great Britain in Mr. Bryce's presence in Washington, but their successors will uphold the standard.

Is this suggestion as to Mr. Bryan founded upon the Buchanan episode? Is it believed that his absence from the country for the next four years would strengthen his prospects for 1916?

Mr. Buchanan, it will be remembered was sent to London by President Pierce, and remained until 1866. He was absent during the turmoil over the Kansas-Nebraska bill, which crippled Judge Douglas as a democratic leader and so escaped injury. In 1866 prior to the holding of the democratic National Convention, he resigned his office, came home and without the smell of any of the latest party conflict on his garments secured the presidential nomination and was elected.

But there is as wide a difference between the two periods as between the two men. There is no public question of this day that bites as did the slavery question of that day, and Mr. Bryan no more resembles Mr. Buchanan in disposition or methods than a roaring cataract does a placid and elusive brook. The one man is an uncompromising agitator, while the other was a prince of trimmers, as full of compromise as an egg of meat, and in the end fell a victim of his duplicity.

No, Mr. Bryan's place would appear to be here at home. What is called Bryanism triumphed at Baltimore in the nomination of Mr. Wilson and expectation is that it will triumph with Mr. Wilson in office. Why then should not the author of the tam remain close by, and either in the cabinet, or as the party's leader outside of office, lend a hand when as is certain to occur, the contest becomes warm? Why a great battle, "with Sheridan twenty miles away."—Washington Star.

THE CLIPPER SHIPS

Romantic and Beautiful Craft that the Sea Has Lost Forever

I had something of the sea in Boston for my father was a China merchant, and after the fashion of the merchants of those days, had his office in the granite block which stretched down to the end of Commercial wharf. My father's counting room was at the very end, in the last division of the block, and from the windows I could look out on the ships lying alongside of the wharf. They were beautiful vessels, American clipper ships, in the days when our ships of that type were famous throughout the world for speed and staunchness.

I wandered about over them making friends, with the captains, the seamen, and the shipkeepers, and taking a most absorbing interest in everything connected with them. They brought me from China admirably fine crackers and strange fireworks which I could not make go off. From them, too, came bronzes and porcelains, and pictures and carved ivory which I was wont to look at wonderingly, and ginger and sweetmeats and lychee nuts (then almost unknown here), of which I used to partake with keen delight. For the teas and silks which filled the holds I cared nothing, but the history, and adventures of the ships interested me greatly.

I was indifferent to those which my father had bought, which rejoiced in such names as the Alfred Hill, and Sarah H. Snow, but I cared enormously for those which he had built and named himself. There was the Argonaut, his luckiest ship, in which he told me I had an interest or share. I still have a stiff picture of it painted by a Chinese artist in the Western manner and a very beautiful ship it must have been. Then there were two named for the heroes of my father's best loved books the Don Quixote and the Sancho Panza. Then there were others, crack ships in their day whose names appealed to my imagination—the Kremilla, the Storm King, the Cosack, and the Magnet. But over all was the mystery and the fascination of the sea, and those who have been born by it and have fallen under its spell are never happy when long parted from the ocean and the ships.—Henry Cabot Lodge in Scribner's Magazine.

SCHOOL TEACHERS IN NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Present Festival of Nations to a Very Large Crowd.

The Portsmouth Teachers Association scored a great success on Thursday evening, when they presented at the Assembly hall in the high school building, the Festival of Nations. The teachers expected from the advance sale of tickets that the "Standing Room Only" sign would be brought out, but did not anticipate any such crowd as was present. Even with the disagreeable weather the hall was so jammed before eight o'clock that people were refused admission and then the anti-rooms filled.

The hall was very attractively decorated, the booths representing the different countries being artistic efforts. At these booths there was a sale of candy, flowers, chocolates and ect, and there was a complete clean up of all things offered.

The entertainment was very clever and consisted of a Dutch pantomime written by Miss Coddilla C. Eggleston, and it introduced Mr. and Mrs. Dutch Cleanser their friends and their enemies. This was presented by the children from the Farrington school.

A Dutch dance was given by little Miss Gwendolyn O'Brien and it was very graceful.

A Highland fling with a vocal solo was well rendered by Dorothy Fogg.

Eight of the teachers gave a very charming Spanish dance in costume they were Misses Mildred E. Gove, Marguerite W. Stoddard, C. Ruth Leavitt, Mary K. McWilliams, Gertrude Corey, Marguerite L. Emery.

GEN. SUPT. RAY TALKS TO BUSINESS MEN

Explains Work of Boston & Maine Railroad to Increase the Efficiency in Passenger and Freight Service.

Mr. William F. Ray, General Superintendent of the Boston & Maine railroad was the speaker at the regular weekly business men's supper at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday and then was a large attendance of the business men to hear him.

The usual menu was served from 6.15 and at seven o'clock Mr. John W. Kelley, toastmaster, introduced Mr. Ray. In a short speech in which he made it known that Mr. Ray would like to be questioned and that after his talk would take up any complaint that any of the merchants happened to have.

Mr. Ray stated that it was a pleasure to get in touch with the business men and find out where the railroad was at fault in this way things could be straightened out or a good explanation given why certain conditions existed. He went on to state that the Boston & Maine railroad with the New Haven and all of its contributory roads had complications in New England that did not effect the western road or for that matter the New York Central, but he was confident that the consolidation of the lines would work out a great many problems in both passenger and freight traffic and be much more satisfactory to the traveling public and the shippers.

In the passenger branch he called attention to this state to the many cross country roads, which were the same all over New England. Now in the big roads no wait was made for connections for the through trains and if a branch line was late then the train would not wait and the passenger would be left to wait for another train. This was the condition in this state and in New England before the consolidation, but now the matter had been given a close study and every effort made to have all trains meet at junction points with a reasonable time to make connections. It had been hard work owing to the great many different roads, and now all trains were not running on time, but out of the thousands of passenger trains a day, the time was better and there were no people left at junction points. He explained that every train on the entire system was checked up every day and every delay traced back to the cause and an effort made to correct it.

It was the same way with the freight travel. Here the greatest effort was being made to perfect the system by which the freight of New England could be handled speedily without the delays that have occurred. In this direction great strides had been made and another year would see a great improvement. He explained the present system of assembling the freight in use at the present time and by means of a chart showing the New England system, showed the different assembling points for the small freight packages, where they were sorted and assembled and then shipped in car lots direct to their destination. These points were scattered over the entire system and on an average each point was assembling from one to two hundred cars of freight a day. This problem of re-assembling the freight was not alone confined to the New Haven and Boston and Maine but to all of the roads in the country and the present plan was being used while the experts were always seeking for a better solution of this great problem.

In regards to the car load lots, he explained the great delays that have been caused, are due to the trouble in the freight yards where cars are not handled as fast as they should be. Great improvements have been made in this matter since the consolidation, and he explained by a system of charts how this was done. The roads now have gate ways to New England where there will be great yards for the purpose of assembling the car lots. At Mechanville the road is expanding nearly a million dollars in building a grand system of thirty to forty tracks, where he stated the freight would come in and then the car load lots shifted out and sent to their proper track and as soon as enough cars would be assembled, a train would be made up and the cars shipped direct to their destination. For this city, and Gloucester branch the trains would run direct to Salem where it would be resorted and sent on. At Maybrook there was another gate way and from there trains are being made up and sent direct. In former days a train would be made up and from Maybrook to Portland the train would be held up at from six to ten yards where it lost so much time on an average of five to six hours in a yard. Now the train would make on that trip but one yard at Ayer Junction and thence on to Portland making the trip in a quarter of the time. In this way the long delays in the junction yards were being eliminated and better time made on all through freight and in a years time even better conditions could prevail.

In closing he stated that the Boston and Maine had the finest class of employees of any railroad in the country, they were well paid and they were all capable men, with no floaters and they were all working in harmony with the officials to increase the efficiency of the road.

Following the supper, Mr. Ray met the merchants and answered a great many questions.

Recovered From Severe Lung Trouble

While we all know that plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise should at least investigate what it has done for others. It may be the means of restoring you to health. Investigate this case:

Madison Lake, Minn.
Gentlemen:— In March 1908, and March, 1909 I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs which confined me several weeks, each time to my bed. These left me very weak and I coughed at nights and could not sleep. My appetite also failed me. My doctor advised me to go West. So in December, 1909 I planned to go, but I had four more hemorrhages, which put me in bed for three weeks.

"In November I started for Denver, Col. After my arrival I met Michael Brody, who upon learning of my condition urged me to take Eckman's Alternative. In about two months I began to feel better. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March 1910, I returned home. I think I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 185, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alternative for my health. If I can help any other person suffering from Tuberculosis I will gladly do so." (Signed Affidavit) PAUL L. FAS-NACHT.

Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons opiates or habit forming drugs. For sale by Benjamin Green and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

ADMIT FOUR WOMEN LAWYERS

Supreme Court of District of Columbia Lets Down Bar to Female Exponents of Law.

Four young women, Misses Alice M. Birdsell of California, Mary C. Farmer of North Carolina, Rebecca Lawrence Love of Virginia and Katherine R. Pike of New York were admitted the other day to practice law before the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Miss Birdsell came here from Los Angeles to take her law course. She had served as court stenographer and was connected with a law firm there. She will open an office and practice law at Phoenix, Ariz.

Misses Farmer and Love, southern women, are suffragettes. Neither will practice law at present.

"I did not take law to practice it, but I may hang out a shingle some day," said Miss Farmer to a reporter. "I hope that my knowledge of law can be used in the cause of woman suffrage. That is my desire now."

Miss Farmer is a stenographer. Miss Love is in the law department of the library of congress.

Miss Pike is in the customs service of the United States, and has the distinction of being the first woman to assist in the inspection of an incoming ocean liner. From a revenue cutter Miss Pike boarded the Kaiseria Victoria Augusta a few weeks ago in New York. Miss Pike prefers to remain in the government service.

ELECTRIFY GROWING PLANTS

Government Expert Strings Wires Over Uncle Sam's Garden on Potomac River.

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, head of the experiment section of the bureau of plant industry, is stringing electric wires over a government garden on the Potomac river, near Washington, for the purpose of growing plants by the aid of electricity. He will electrify onions and snap beans, potatoes and hops.

For some time Dr. Briggs has been experimenting with electricity in improved cultivation of various plants, but his apparatus was not of the best type until now. A few new wires from England were imported for use in the Potomac fields. They are now being put in position. The wires are about sixteen feet above the ground.

Dr. Briggs will not tell just how he is going to apply electricity to the onion and the bean, but he thinks that he will produce better onions and beans at a lower cost than the farmer of today produces them.

SAVE TIME IN KITCHEN

SYSTEMATIC DISHWASHING DOES AWAY WITH MUCH WORK.

Once a Day Should Be Sufficient in the Average Family if a Proper Way of Doing the Work is Followed.

Of all the necessary things in housekeeping the one most disliked by the average woman is dishwashing. Times without number you hear the housewife's wail: "If it were not for washing dishes I would not mind the work."

Yet this need not be such a dreaded task if you will step aside from the beaten path and wash the dishes only once a day.

Unless you have a large family who require a quantity of dishes at each meal this is not only practicable, but a big time-saver.

Have ready two good-sized dishpans, and after each meal scrape all scraps from the dishes to be washed, empty all liquid from cups and glasses and stack the dishes carefully in the pans, putting the large plates in the bottom and smaller ones on top.

In the second pan put all small pieces, vegetable dishes and small platters.

Stand the silver upright in a jug or pitcher and pour over all enough very hot water, in which a good soap powder or a little washing soda has been dissolved, to cover.

Now let the dishes stand in these receptacles until the morning hours, when work is easiest.

The hot water will grow cold, but the grease from the dishes will be floating on top and can be scooped off first, then the water poured off.

This done, the dishes will be virtually clean and ready to be rinsed in steaming hot water.

After this, if you are a wise housekeeper, you will have a wire drainer ready to receive the dripping china, in which it can be placed on a decided slant and left to drain dry.

They are ready then for the next meal, clean, bright and polished.

Glasses, of course, and silver must be dried on a cloth.

Glasses should be quickly washed and dried after each meal; but that is a small matter if all the other dishes can be left until you are quite ready to "do" them.

Try this method, ye weary housekeepers, and find how soon it will be regularly adopted, and you will not lose a moment's conscience-stricken sleep because of dishes left unwashed.

Hints for the Floor.

Cork mats, which are easily rolled up, are among the sensible accessories for the bathroom.

Rag rugs made of cotton wash well. These are inexpensive and are often just the thing for the kitchen, as well as other parts of the house.

If you are having the floor of a room refinished do not have it finished to a shine, but to the point of a soft glow. The reason is that the soft effect will harmonize better with the furnishings.

Paper plates with roses painted thereon come with dollies and paper tablecloth to match, and are truly artistic.

Fish Cream.

Run cold cooked fish through the chopper to the amount of two cupsful. Pour one cup of boiling water over one cup of fine breadcrumbs. Let this mixture stand 15 minutes, then add the fish, a half teaspoon of salt, a pinch of white pepper, a tablespoon of minced olives or parsley, two tablespoons of melted butter and two well-beaten eggs. Pour into a well-buttered mold, steam in a steamer for three-quarters of an hour. Serve as soon as unmolded on a hot platter, served with tomato sauce. This makes a very nice dish for a luncheon.

Swedish Meat Balls.

One pound of round steak, quarter of a pound of fresh pork. Grind up together; add one good-sized onion chopped fine. Roll three common crackers or three fair-sized cold-boiled potatoes. If crackers are used, roll fine; put all in a mixing bowl, add beaten egg and three-fourths cup of milk. Add salt and pepper to suit taste. Form into balls and fry in butter or pork fat. These are just delicious.

Clean Coffee Pot.

To keep the coffee pot sweet and clean put a tablespoonful of carbonate of soda into it, fill it nearly full of water, and let it boil for a little while. Then rinse very thoroughly with several lots of warm water. If this is done once a week, the pot will always be fresh and nice.

Orion Salad.

Cut nice white onions into small pieces, stand in very cold water for an hour or more. Dry in clean towel, mix with mayonnaise dressing and arrange in mound on dish. Outline with slices of hard-boiled egg and garnish with parsley.

Homely Hint.

Sometimes white trimmings on a colored dress look dingy. Wring a white cloth out in this starch, place on the trimmings, then put a dry cloth over that and iron with a hot iron, and the dirt will come off on the starched cloth.

Washing Brushes.

When washing brushes of any kind add a little ammonia to the water. There is less danger of the bristles dropping out.

THING THAT IS IMPORTANT

Proper Color Effect Must Be Kept in Mind When Buying Flower Holders for the House.

In buying vases, pitchers, bowls, anything that may be used as flower holders, remember the color effect. Choose neutral tones, unless you can afford to have a number of jardinières. Soft, gray, dull green, a wood brown or a deep cream will never clash with your decorations.

For occasional use a deep orange is good, with many color schemes, and with dinnas, marigolds, golden glow and other deep-tinted yellow flowers a highly glazed bowl of dark Prussian blue makes a good contrast.

Flowers rarely look well in an inexpensive vase, however handsome. The coloring detracts from the colorings of the flowers and both are weakened. For this reason the cut glass, rock crystal or even the plain glass vase is preferable to one of colored glass, even though it be green.

The brass jardiniere of Oriental hammered brass, finger bowl or vase looks well with many deep-toned flowers, either in harmonizing yellow and brown tones or in vivid blues and reds. Larkspur and sweet williams look their best in a brass vase and also in a bowl of orange crockery.

EXCELLENT FOR FISH COURSE

With Lobster Meat as the Foundation, Hostess May Serve Preparation That is Delicious.

For a dainty little fish course, take two cups of lobster meat and chop very fine, then force it through a sieve. Add two tablespoons of fine bread crumbs, four tablespoons of double cream, one-half cup of milk and the beaten yolks of two eggs; season with salt, a little paprika, and one tablespoon of lemon juice, and blend thoroughly, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Fill small green pepper shells, that have first been parboiled in salted water, with the mixture; place in a baking pan and partly surround the top with buttered paper, and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes, says an exchange. Rub the lobster coral through a sieve and sprinkle over the top of each timbale; garnish with parsley and serve with a rich cream sauce.

Sardine Salad.

Take some cold cooked fish, had-look will do, free it from skin and bone and flake it. Place a layer of this in a dish and sprinkle it over with minced gherkins and a few bruised capers, arrange on this a layer of sliced German sausage and arrange on the top of the pile, sardines freed from skin and bone and split in halves. Cut some lettuce hearts into quarters, place round the dish with hard-boiled eggs, also cut into quarters. Then pour over the following sauce: Take the flesh of three sardines and rub to a smooth paste with the yolk of two hard-boiled eggs, a pinch of cayenne, a grate of nutmeg, and two tablespoons each of olive oil and vinegar. Beat the sauce well before adding it to the salad.

Berkshire Potatoes.

Heat one quart of milk into which two large sliced onions have been placed. Boil this for several minutes in a double boiler, then take out the onions. Cream one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of flour, and add to the above. Cook until it thickens. Add one pint of cold boiled potatoes cut into slices and one tablespoonful of minced parsley. Season with salt and pepper, and soon as the mixture thickens and is heated through, turn into buttered crumbs and brown in the oven.

Bean Pot Roast.

Take one pound of beef, a cheap cut, is just as good if it is free from veins. Cut in pieces about an inch square. Put in all the fat, too. Put in bean pots, just cover with water and put in the oven. As water boils away, add a little more. Let cook four or five hours. When about half done add a little salt. When ready to serve take from oven and put it in the spider. Thicken with a little flour mixed with water. The gravy is a rich brown.

Winter Succotash.

One cup either lima, yellow-eyed or pea beans, which have been soaked over night. Drain. Simmer all the morning in enough water to cover, to which add salt, pepper and a piece of salt pork two inches square. Half an hour before serving add one can corn and water enough to keep from burning. Add one pint hot milk, bring to a boil and serve at once. Serve this some cold day with hot rolls or hot gingerbread.

Poor Man's Stew.

Line bottom of baking dish with very thin slices of salt pork, then a layer of sliced potatoes (thin layer), a layer of onions, salt and pepper, then a layer of split crackers. Put in another layer of potatoes, onions and crackers. Cover with milk and bake like escalloped potatoes. You probably will have to add more milk as crackers take up a lot.

Codfish Balls.

Boil one cupful codfish with four good-sized potatoes; when done mash potatoes and fish together, add good-sized pieces of butter, a little pepper and one egg beaten; roll in a little flour to form balls and place in frying pan; fry brown on one side in butter, turn and brown on the other side.

NEED MORE HEALTH OFFICERS.

"We need more doctors of public health than more doctors of medicine," says Dr. F. B. Dresslar in a bulletin. "The duty of the State in Medical Inspection of Schools," just issued by the United States bureau of Education. Dr. Dresslar pleads earnestly for the kind of medical inspection that seeks to promote health rather than that which hunts for ill-health. "Our system of paying doctors to do something for us when we are sick ought to be largely discarded for the Chinese system of paying them to keep us from getting sick."

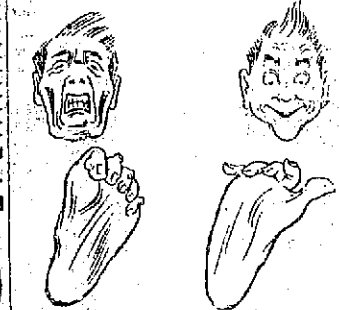

Dr. Dresslar justifies the State's intervention in the health of its citizens on broad grounds of public policy. He feels that the community has as much right to demand good health in its children as it has to demand that they attend school; as much right to preserve the community against the contagion of disease and bodily neglect as against the contagion of ignorance. The chief asset of any State is physical stamina, guided by wholesome, moral ideals, and broadminded intellectual power, and Dr. Dresslar contends that medical inspection and health supervision are indispensable agencies for conserving this asset.

In answer to the question: Has medical inspection as now organized proved useful? Dr. Dresslar shows conclusively that medical inspection has called attention in a startling way to the danger of school conditions in transmitting disease; it has already lessened actual illness and consequently secured better school attendance; and, best of all, medical inspection in the hands of carefully trained men with the right spirit has proved to be an educational agent of great value, by stimulating parents to give more attention to food, clothing, sleeping rooms and general home sanitation, and by disseminating better ideals of hygienic living.

It is in this increased knowledge by the people as a whole concerning the personal care of health that Dr. Dresslar finds the greatest ultimate good of medical inspection. He notes that great numbers of our people are still in gross ignorance and superstition regarding health and disease, since many of them constantly attribute to a divine Providence their freedom from disease, directly due to filth. "Our chief duty lies in removing the causes which contribute to physical unsoundness and disease. As long as we herd our children in schools where they must breathe impure air, bend over nasal trays, work at books when they need physical exercise, just so long shall we be paying for our own errors."

Dr. Dresslar concludes that we need health officers whose chief delight is in finding and developing beautiful cases of physical perfection rather than in finding some obscure and rare disease; health officers whose philosophy is based on the gospel of physical vigor, on the sanctity of personal purity and the goodness of clean living; "doctors of health" in very truth, who will be concerned with exhibiting, not a long list of the physically defective and diseased, but a large list of healthy, well-developed children.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

"Concerts for All"—such certainly might with full justice be the slogan adopted by the Boston Opera House for the series of Sunday orchestral concerts planned for the coming season. Not in the history of music in Boston have concerts of such artistic value been offered at the prices which Director Russell announces for the course beginning Sunday, Dec. 1. These prices are lower than have ever before obtained at the Opera house, ranging as they do from 25c to one dollar, and the quality of the musical offering instead of being weakened has been decidedly strengthened. Heretofore the programs have been largely miscellaneous in character and excerpts or fragments from operatic works have constituted the principal material from which the lists were made. This year, however, Mr. Caplet has outlined a complete series of programs each of which shall possess some distinctive musical character. There is to be purpose in the offering—a certain school, a particular tendency, or some strongly individual composer in the musical world is to be represented by each afternoon of music. The operatic is to be largely eliminated save as it has the requisite representative value, and compositions of more symphonic nature are to be performed. Thus the programs are to be lent an art worth and a musical unity which heretofore have been lacking. Having as he does at his disposal, not only the excellent orchestra of the Opera house, but also the large chorus, Mr. Caplet will be able to present a number of choral works included among which will be certain rarely heard ones in smaller form. Works for two, three or four solo voices are also brought within the range of easy achievement, and will be given performance—frequently for the first time in Boston.

It will be seen that the concerts baffle to be of a musical worth which will entitle them to a place among the most valuable and important offerings of the season.

To many, however, one of the greatest attractions of the series will be the list of soloists announced. Not before in Boston and rarely in any other city in the United States, have the artists who are to appear in these concerts been heard at prices ranging from a quarter to a dollar. At the opening concert the principal soloist will be Mr. Valmi Marcoux, the eminent baritone of the Opera company. At the second Miss Mary Garden will be heard in "The Blessed Damozel" and the "Forgotten Airs" of Debussy. For the third Ysaye, the violinist who albeit called a Belgian belong to the whole world, will make his first appearance in Boston after an absence of several years. Mme. Tetrazzini will be the soloist at the fourth concert, and for the fifth Mr. John McCormack has been engaged, and associated with Mme. G. and other soloists will sing in Verdi's "Requiem."

Marcoux, Garden, Ysaye, Tetrazzini and McCormack—such is the list of soloists promised for the first five concerts (the concerts in December), and certainly not before has such a list been offered at the prices now arranged. While the plans for the concerts following the New Year are not as yet completed, it is known that the soloist standard will be kept up to that set by these first five, and that viewed solely from the standpoint of individual artist offering, this Sunday orchestral concert series will be unprecedented in Boston. That such artists as Mme.

Schumann-Heink, Mme. Nordica, Mme. Marcel, Mr. Clement, and pianists and violinists of the first rank will be among those appearing in the later concerts is assurance of the continuance throughout the season of the interest and exceptional attractiveness of the course.

By placing the concerts at 8.15 in the afternoon instead of eight in the evening, it is believed that greater convenience and pleasure will be secured for the general public. There is a time on Sunday afternoon when social engagements are comparatively few, and when the hearing of fine music is particularly acceptable. It is at just this time that the Sunday orchestral concerts are to be given, at the Opera house, and they thus will be accessible to many for whom the evening hour was inconvenient.

The first concert of the series will take place on Dec. 1, and will be devoted to a program of music purely Russian in origin and character. In the program Mr. Caplet will have under his direction the complete orchestra and chorus of the Opera house, and as assisting soloists Mr. Marcoux, Mme. Claessens, Miss Barnes and Miss Von Aken.

The second program is to be devoted to the music of Rameau and Debussy. The management of the Opera house makes known that any patrons desiring certain seats for the entire series of the Sunday orchestral concerts can subscribe for them by applying to the box office.

OLD CAPITAL LIFE TOLD

INTERESTING GOSSIP AND DETAIL OF CENTURY AGO.

Dinner With Kin of George Washington, Madison's Inauguration and Visit to Jefferson Referred to in Letters of Margaret Smith.

To one familiar with the splendid city of Washington it is difficult to realize that a little more than a century ago it was a place with few comforts or conveniences, a rather unhealthy, swampy spot, and the magnificent Pennsylvania avenue of today was a road absolutely dangerous for carriages.

Through the letters of Margaret Smith there are delightful bits of gossip and personal detail that make those early days, with their events, a chronicle of exceeding value.

Her marriage to Samuel Harrison Smith took her to Washington when she was but twenty-two. When Thomas Jefferson was vice-president of the United States he urged Harrison Smith to undertake the editing and publishing of what was called the National Intelligencer, at Washington.

Margaret Smith not only counted as warm friends all the notable persons in Washington through her entire life, but she met and entertained all the distinguished visitors who came to the city. Among these were Robert Owen of New Lanark, Scotland, who established at New Harmony, Ind., a socialistic community; another was Harriet Martineau, the interesting English writer, who made quite an extended tour in our country.

Mrs. Smith's letters show that Washington people enjoyed the close, informal and simple life that might be found in a large village. When, paying one of her first calls upon the granddaughter of Mrs. Washington—she and Mrs. Smith were kept for dinner. There was to be a fine roast turkey and they must stay and help eat it.

The hostess took Margaret to the kitchen to see what she called "the ranger," which was set in a vast chimney place, heated by wood, and with this new contrivance there was a grate, a place for broiling and an oven. She then took her guest upstairs and allowed her to assist her in putting up some chamber curtains. When dinner was served five other persons who had come to pay a call had been kept to assist with the turkey.

When Madison became president Margaret Smith said that Mrs. Madison looked extremely beautiful at the reception after the inauguration. She wore a plain cambric dress, with a long train, plain around the neck, and a bonnet of purple velvet trimmed with white satin and white plumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith made a visit at Monticello and enjoyed a few days with Mr. Jefferson and his daughter, Mrs. Randolph. Jefferson himself showed them about the estate. He also allowed one else to show them his library, where there were some real treasures. Among these were some original letters of Cortez to the king of Spain.

In 1834 Margaret Smith said that the senate chamber was the center of attraction for political interests and the fashionable world. It was daily crowded almost to suffocation. And she added that here the intellectual gladiators exhibited their various and gigantic powers, not simply for the good of the country, but also for the entertainment of the audience.

Knew His Father's Kind of Prayers. The small son of a devout father, who was given to making long and tedious prayers, had contracted to shovel the snow off the neighbor's walk. He was almost through when dinner was announced. He very much wanted to finish the job, but at the same time he knew that it was not expedient to be too late at a meal where there were so many brothers and sisters in the family. Then he had a happy thought.

"Have you said grace yet?" he inquired of his father, who had come out on the steps to call him. On receiving a negative response, he exclaimed as he made the snow fly: "Go ahead, I'll be there when you're through."

Takes New Pet to Capital. The credit for introducing a new pet into Washington society is given to Miss Marjorie Stewart, daughter of a wealthy miller of St. Paul, who has come to the capital to attend a fashionable seminary. She can be seen upon the streets with a fuzzy little marmoset nestling closely to the bosom of her smart gray frock. Debutantes gasp in amazement at the furry little creature that blinks back at them without even a whimper.

May Reform Chinese Language. A reformation of the Chinese language seems not unlikely, for the educational conference, which recently met in Peking, headed by the minister of education, has passed resolutions looking toward the adoption of a phonetic alphabet. It was made clear that the ignorance of the common people is due in large measure to the difficulty of the Chinese written language.

MR. ELLERY REPLIES TO THE BOARD OF ASSESSORS

Says He Was Surprised to Receive the Tax Bill

Another lot of those delicious grapefruit at Cater's Market, Daniel street, for 25c.

Native chickens and fowls at Cater's Market, Daniel street.
Order a barrel of hand picked Baldwin apples at Cater's Market. Don't delay it.

Parishmouth, N. H., Nov. 15, 1912.

Editor of the Herald—Replying in detail to the article signed by the Board of Assessors in last night's local papers, would say that the Board of Assessors evidently believe, or intend the public to believe that City Hall should be called Harmony Hall, and we must conclude that the echoes we hear from that quarter from time to time are really just one department of our city government cheering and applauding the other.

With regard to the Ellery Drill and Tool Co. paying taxes, would say that unless the Board of Assessors can be brought to see the error of their ways, we expect to pay the full amount of the assessment.

Of course, the writer was surprised to receive the tax bill, as a few days before he had received official notice of the partial exemption of the company's taxes, and a request that a written acceptance of the terms of this exemption be forwarded to the City Clerk, which was accordingly done. A few days afterward, we received a tax bill for the full amount of taxation, and in calling up the tax collector, we were referred to the Board of Assessors.

Before appearing before the Board of Assessors, it occurred to the writer that what should govern this matter was primarily the intent of the Council. He therefore called on the several members of the Council whom he could get in contact with, and more than enough to constitute a majority of the Council, and every one of these gentlemen assured the writer that their intention was that the partial exemption should take place this year.

Mr. Ellery laid these facts before the City Assessors, and they claimed that the matter was out of their jurisdiction; that they could not lawfully comply with the wishes of the Council, and referred him to the State Tax Commission in Concord.

I received a reply from the State Board of Taxation signed by H. B. Fellows, secretary, extracts of which read as follows: "This (State tax) commission has no power to act in the matter of which you write" and again with regard to the power of the City Assessors: "However, that need not prevent them from abating your city tax if they think it best to do so, acting under the provision of P. S. Ch. 59, Sec. 10. They could fairly regard the unintentional delay of the City Council as good cause for granting the abatement." And finally: "The question of granting an abatement is for them to decide."

After receiving this from the highest tax authority in the State, I think there can be no question as to the power of the Board of Assessors, and while the Board of Assessors may have been ignorant of the intent of the Council in the first place, they cannot claim this as an excuse after Mr. Ellery had brought the declared intent of the Council to their attention, and which they could easily have verified by asking the members of this honorable Board.

There was some talk at the time about the duty of the Assessors being to collect the tax levy and that if they granted this abatement it might create a deficit. This excuse is almost childish, as in collecting a sum of money as large as the aggregate tax of the City of Portsmouth, there must be some provision made to meet just such contingencies, as there is not a year goes by when the City is not obliged to make abatements.

The petition was first brought to the attention of the Council not late in March, but early in March, and while the matter came up from time to time, there was no definite action taken until two months after.

With regard to the Mayor, I believe that this gentleman has been perfectly honest in this matter. He told the writer in the first place that he did not approve of exemption from taxes or principal, but that he would not interfere with the wishes of the Council and when the writer called his attention at the last meeting in March to the fact that this matter should be settled in order to take effect by April 1, the Mayor assured the writer that action as the resolution was pending the action of the Board. It would make no difference whatever. In this he was evidently mistaken.

With regard to the McElwain Co. who were granted an exemption at the same time as the Ellery Drill and Tool company, I beg to say that had the Ellery Drill and Tool Co.'s resolution been acted on as speedily as the McElwain Co.'s, this question would never have arisen. The McElwain Co.'s resolution did not go in until after May 1 therefore there is no comparison between the two cases.

In conclusion, I would say that I do not start this campaign of publicity and that it is only to correct an erroneous impression that it appears the Board of Assessors are determined shall continue, that I have made these facts public.

Yours very truly,

Consider the After-wear Viewpoint
Most any clothes look good at first glance—IT IS HOW THEY LOOK AFTER HARD WEAR THAT COUNTS MOST. STEIN-BLOCH SMART CLOTHES will stand any exacting examination as to style, fit and quality at the try-on. More important though, they will look right, feel right and wear right in active service. Try on today before our big mirrors.
